CENTRE FOR ABORIGINAL STUDIES

INDIGENOUS TERTIARY ENABLING COURSE

Enjoy learning in a culturally appropriate environment that gives you the foundation skills necessary for university studies.

The Centre for Aboriginal Studies offers this enabling course to provide Indigenous Australian students with key academic skills to transition into undergraduate studies. Since this course was established in 1976, it has helped hundreds of Indigenous students enter university.

"My favourite part of the course was my Indigenous poster presentation, sharing some interesting facts and learning about Eddie Mabo. I learned how to write an essay at an academic and tertiary level. If I could give one piece of advice to someone thinking about studying at university it would be - just do it!"

Timothy Routley
Bachelor of Commerce

Since completing the Indigenous Tertiary Enabling Course, Tim has been involved in the Deadly Mentoring Program as a mentor, sharing advice to new students. He is currently studying his Bachelor of Commerce and hopes to pursue a career in business law.

WHY STUDY THE INDIGENOUS TERTIARY ENABLING COURSE?

- The short duration of this course is beneficial if you want to fast-track your education.
- Mature-age students or those who have not studied tertiary level subjects in high school have an opportunity to study at university through this enabling course.
- This course is available for study either face-to-face at the Curtin Bentley or online with extra support in some regional areas, allowing you to take control of your own learning.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

When you complete this course, you will be equipped with the skills and confidence to start university studies, and are eligible for entry into a range of Curtin's degree and associate degree programs.

You may also benefit from career development opportunities such as mentoring and support in finding student work placements.
